Poisonous Plants in the Hay.

Much loss may be avoided by paying a little more attention to the quality of food that is fed to live stock. To use as food, hay which is 80 per cent coarse and unpalatable weeds is not the best means of keeping stock in good condition, nor is it more wise to feed them poisonous plants.

Most animals have an instinctive knowledge of injurious foods and will push aside and leave suspicious portions of their hay. But this refuse is often chopped up with the fodder in such a manner that they must eat it or starve.

Bracken is conspicuous in hay by its coarse foliage and rusty green colour. A closer examination will reveal on the side of the leaves, a narrow band of rusty brown. All broken should be removed from the hay and burnt. It will not do to leave it for bedding, as greedy hens will eat their bedding with waiting for their regular feed. No ill effects appear after eating it, but a wise check on poisoning is slow and cumulative.

The fibrous branches of horse-tail are usually distinguished by a difference in colour, being of a darker and bluish shade of green than the ordinary hay. Other differences are, the hollow stems, the leaflets, furrowed and jointed branches, with sharply pointed teeth around the joints.

The poisoning of the cattle in the west has occurred through the eating of the seed-pods of lupins dried with the hay; lone might easily have been avoided by picking out the coarse stalks with the three-parted pointed pods. The leaves of the lupins resemble those of the buttercups and are very toxic in a fresh green state. But with maturity they lose their toxicity which then becomes concentrated in the seeds. Thus a very small quantity of pods and seeds will cause death.

Another noticeable fact among hay, harmful to sheep, is the lupins. The pods and seeds are the most poisonous portions of the plant and these are often cut with the hay in the western provinces. The action of the poison is not cumulative and hence animals may feed upon the plant without much harm unless the toxic limit is reached. The toxic dose for sheep of the seeds alone is 1 to 1 pound, and that of the seeds together with the pods is about 15 lbs. The pods are about as long, or less, of less hairy and are arranged at intervals along the stem. A few moments spent each day in looking over the hay will well repay even the busiest owner of stock.

Government Feed for Live Stock.

Government feed at reasonable prices may be secured by farmers and live stock men through the Feed Division of the Live Stock branch of the Department of Agriculture, Ottawa, which has established reserves at different distributing points as follows: Re-cleaned elevator screenings, $30. per ton, bulk carload lots. Port William. There is an export embargo on this class of feed.

Feed corn $1.40 per bushel. F. O. B. Port William.

Limed oil cake meal $55.00 per ton Toronto, and $60.00 per ton F. O. B. Montreal in car load lots packed in 300 pound sacks.

It would be well for farmers to get together and order car-loads of above feeds before winter conditions affect transportation. Address orders for corn screenings and oil cake meal to the feed Division, Live Stock Branch Ottawa.

Barley and shorts upon which there is an absolute export embargo, are sold through the regular trade at fixed prices of $31.00 per ton for bran and $30.00 per ton for shorts. Port William, plus freight and $42.00 per

Mr. Alf and Stewart Reynd spent Sunday evening at Mr. Goldreich's.

The "tin" seems to have left this part of the country as we do not hear of many cases.

The weather is a little snippy these days.

Not much Montreal, including sacks in each case. Freight will be deducted to this price according to distance east or west of Montreal respectively.

There is also a supply of dried beet pulp or sugar beet meal accumulated at the sugar refineries in Western Ontario, selling at $25.00 per ton F. O. B. Chatham, Wallaceburg and Kitchener plus a charge of five dollars per ton for bags, which amount is refunded on return of bags. Farmers within a reasonable radius of these points should look into the advantages of this feed, as it is desirable to use it up in Canada.

"Der Tag" Faded With German High Sea Fleet

Surrender Was Thrilling and Very Dramatic

Louis Tracy, who has kept a lot of folks up at night with his crackling tales of adventure by land and sea, admits that the German Fleet is broken. N.Y., the other night, that he had never dreamed of an event so thrilling and dramatic as the surrender of the German high sea to Vice Admiral Beatty and the allied fleet.

After he had been introduced to Vice Admiral Beatty, Tracy jumped right into his inspiration.

"Nothing has happened since the German Fleet was broken up in hand, in Foch, that compares with the dramatic intensity of the episode of the surrender of the German fleet," he said. "The high sea fleet was the supreme expression of German arrogance. She claimed and without reason, an almost irresistible domination upon land, the battle of a great fleet was a distinct challenge to the one power which depended for its very existence upon strength in deep waters. She tried to outbuild England. Germany was soon left behind in the race, though from the days of the first German battle cruiser to the present, Germany has been a menace to the world.

It was then that "Der Tag" became the toast of the German navy, and the wish in the hearts of German officers was always that they might be able to "Der Tag" England, to strike and strike it a mortal blow. How ill they fared the world knows, and the surrender of the other day was the most fitting blow ever given to Germany, though it always had a mortal stab. More than one generation must elapse before any combination of circumstances can permit the Teuton to strut arrogantly on land or float his double-headed vulture over the seas.

Mr. Tracy pointed to Holland and Scandinavia as proof that Germany's contention that she must have a big navy because she had a big world empire was very far from the truth. Dutch, Swedish and Norwegian ships dotted the world with a tremendous trade and that Holland had immense and valuable colonies to protect in the world. England was not far on the part of the nations that Great Britain would deal unfairly with them. They did not find necessary to plot for British destruction.

"Great Britain's fleet is, as ever will remain defensive," said Mr. Tracy. "Germany's fleet was but is not now and may not again be in our time constantly aggressive and constantly a menace to peace and good will on earth."

He drew a dark but majestic picture of Great Britain's war sacrifices and sufferings, pointing to universities, colleges and Canada along giving $6,000 to each undergraduate in the first year of the war—and to the thousands of families for whom life must ever contain deep sorrow.

"They who know tell me," said Mr. Tracy, "that it would take between thirteen and fourteen hours of a summer's day for 100,000 men, marching in platoons of twenty abreast, to pass a reviewing point in Manitoba. It would take upwards of such days for the dead of Britain to pass that point could they be lifted from their glorious graves. There are 300,000 widows in Britain and hundreds of thousands of orphans, children. One's brain reels at the pride Great Britain and her colonies paid to overcome Prussia—but one would have to double the width of Fifth avenue if the dead of

Mr. Tracy closed by predicting very close relations between the United States and Great Britain in the years to come.

OFFICIALLY THANKED

Arduous Work of East African Force Recognised

London.—The chief of the imperial general staff, telegrams to General Sir H. G. Broadhurst, commanding-in-chief of the East African expeditionary forces, says that "now the prolonged campaign in East Africa has been brought to a close the army has deserved the thanks of all and all men of your command, including the Nyasaland and Rhodesia force, on the energy and persistence shown in the pursuit of a determined and elusive enemy, bent on evading capture."

"The difficulty of conducting operations in so vast an expanse of tropical territory and under such forbidding climatic conditions, together with the heavy strain placed upon all ranks, is highly appreciated, and the services of all difficulties merit the highest praise."

Lieut.-Gen. Standenyer, replying in an appropriate manner, says: "This very kind message will go far to compensate all ranks of the army for the good in the world which they have done."

The bugle that sounded "Cease Fire" on the far-fung battle line, sounded for the officers of the Boy Scout movement, the advance of which has been one of the greatest of our best to the great world war; many of our old and tried officers have made the supreme sacrifice; some of them have won the highest distinction on the field of battle, and others in those who will return to us in the near future. Our older boys, too, will be coming back to us, and it will be natural to expect that many of those old officers and Scouts of ours, as soon as they return, will place their services at the disposal of their headquarters. It will be a great day for us when they come home. It now behoves us to prepare ourselves for their return."

So far this province is concerned, the 11th of November saw the dawn of a new day. This waiting and watching has ceased, and now we advance. It is expected every officer who is still in the service will make 100 per cent efficiency in the great work of leading through this organization, the boys of this province, aye, and Dominion, into the great and grand future that lies before them, made possible by the efforts of their fathers and their older brethren.

You who occupy the position of officers, today have done splendid work under adverse circumstances, and you may be sure that the public will be gratified to enjoy with your boys the great future that lies before us. Never, was the need of leadership so great as it is today, nor never was the opportunity given to so many women that is given today in the offering of the Boy Scouts Association. Let us prove worth of our trust, the trust that this great Association puts in each of us, and let us make up to the best of our ability to the nation and to the honor that they accord us.

Our officers, and all our troops are called upon by the great empire to which we belong, to engage in the great offensive organization against the enemies of the human race.

Yours truly,
C. W. ROWLEY,
Provincial Com.

The admiral has addressed a message to the royal air forces, in which he congratulates them on their great work, which history knows no parallel.

The surrender of the German fleet, accomplished without a shot of blank ammunition for all time, the example of the world, and the experiences with which our sea power has attained its end. The world recognizes that this consummation is due to the steadfastness with which this Scout association maintained its morale, the example it set to the boys of the world, and to the honor that they accord us.

Our all officers, and all our troops are called upon by the great empire to which we belong, to engage in the great offensive organization against the enemies of the human race.

Yours truly,
C. W. ROWLEY,

Dear Sirs—

I beg to acknowledge receipt of the circular letter addressed by the provincial commissioner to the officers of the province, and will esteem it a favor if you will be good enough to let me know to my sincere thanks for the same.

District No. 3 welcomes the expressions of hope and encouragement contained in the commissioner's inspiring letter and I feel sure that you will be gratified to learn that all our officers when I say that he may rest assured of our loyal support.

The great war which has at last terminated found our Association prepared, and the events and trials of the war have only strengthened our determination to stand by the酸 test, and found both officers and boys pure gold. An organization which can produce and give to the world such lads as like Jack Cawell and hundreds of others, many of whom noblest deeds have found no record save in the Great Book of the Master Scout, has a future before it of which we have a right to be justly proud.

As the war was so sudden, so does it rest with us to prove by our war methods that merit was the key note of our work. The task is a man is afraid to think himself he should marry.

Dear Sirs—

I beg to acknowledge receipt of the circular letter addressed by the provincial commissioner to the officers of the province, and will esteem it a favor if you will be good enough to let me know to my sincere thanks for the same.

District No. 3 welcomes the expressions of hope and encouragement contained in the commissioner's inspiring letter and I feel sure that you will be gratified to learn that all our officers when I say that he may rest assured of our loyal support.

The great war which has at last right to be justly proud.

As the war was so sudden, so does it rest with us to prove by our war methods that merit was the key note of our work. The task which lies before us all—officers and boys—will be the task of the nation, the task of the province, while we wait in the Immortal Future. Now is the time for us to put forth every effort and strain every nerve to bring our training to that high degree of efficiency which enables us to fit our boys to bear the burdens which tomorrow will place.

Ours is a sacred duty, full of great responsibility, and it is a command given to those who will be most needed for those who will "dig in." It falls to us to do and do now, all that wise counsel and clear vision can suggest to place our forces in the best possible condition to meet the emergency which we have not only carried on, but went over the top, in all our sphere of action as they did in theirs.

It will be a glorious fortune to serve as they did, and we can show them that their service was not in vain. With these thoughts in my mind and this purpose in my heart, I heartily thank you all for the services you have rendered to our country, and offer myself, my officers and Scouts, under God's guidance, to do our best at all times for the good of the great brotherhood which we have been a part of, and to do all that we can do in the best interests of the world.

With best-wishes from all in District 1.

Yours fraternally,
H. C. L. BROADHURST,
Assistant District Commissioner.

Patronize the Local Merchant and Help the Community Spirit

The annual mid-winter drive of the great mail-order houses is on. They calculate on doing an immense business with their country patrons, and the mail-order houses are operated by shrewd business men. There are none shrewder. They have observed that local merchants stay out of the newspapers directly opposite to the mail-order houses. The mail-order houses are out to it that every farmer has one of their big catalogues to peruse during the long winter evenings of January and February. These catalogues cost very little, and are a good investment, efficiency in the great work of leading through this organization, the boys of this province, aye, and Dominion, into the great and grand future that lies before them.

The mail-order catalogues are not limited to communities where wide-spread business men are advertising constantly. They are sold in almost every town and city, and are a good investment. The customer does not pay for them. But somebody does. The mail-order house who loses the customer gains it away from his home county pay for them.

SUFFERED TWO YEARS WITH PIMPLES

Child Could Not Sleep Till Cuticura Healed

"My little brother suffered for about two years from tiny red pimples. They were scattered completely on his body but he had the greatest trouble with his face. The skin was red and very sore and at the time he would cry with a howl of pain. After a few seconds he would have to scratch, and he would scratch again."

"A friend advised me to send for Cuticura Soap and Ointment. I used a thick coating of Cuticura Soap and four boxes of Cuticura Soap and four boxes of Cuticura Soap and Ointment. When he was well he was well again. (Signed) Louis L. Frisch, 740 First Ave., Montreal, Que., February 2, 1918.

BETTER RECEPTION FOR BRITISH

Germans Rejoice at Arrival of Troops

London.—The German population west of the Rhine becomes more cordial in its attitude towards the British as Field Marshal Haig's forces moved forward, and a unit dictated dispatch from the correspondent of the Daily Mail with the British army.

"As we approach the Rhine," the correspondent says, "our reception becomes more surprising. The authorities in such places as Duren unhesitatingly that they rejoice at our arrival. They give two reasons for that, that they are afraid of their own people and are afraid of the British. Many men confess that the end of the war brought such relief that the stigma of defeat weighs little."

"The revolutionary moment is real but we much prefer the status quo. The outbreaks during the few last days were suppressed by the retreating army, which is much less Bolshevik than the soldiers in reserve at the bases. Many Germans have died in unison along the basins. They are demobilized, but they have no civilian clothes to take the place of their uniforms."

"The armed men guarding the frontier and the tracks are the forerunner of their expected entry in the war against both the British and French. An overwhelming desire for peace makes of these soldiers a strong element of our enemies at the rate for the time being. Danger signals are received at times and on occasions, cavalry and machine gunners are called by the German army to the front. The most segregated front—Bolshevik outbreaks of Russian character. The majors and their staffs act with admirable dignity, but much of the population is almost too obsequious and servile for our men."

Many Relatives Affected
Two hundred and seventy-eight persons have been affected by the de-thronement of King Edward, the abdication of King George V, and the number thirty-three were of the royal Prussian house and thirty-nine of the Bavarian reigning family.

RECEIVING WAR CROSS

The patriotic spirit and devotion of the British and Canadian women have not so far performed as the men, but the love and made sacrifice has never been equalled in the history of any country. Must Pay With Gold

Geddes Says Britain Does Not Want German Goods as Payment

London.—Speaking at Plymouth, Sir Edward Geddes, a member of the coalition government, said that whatever else Germany might pay in discharging the cost of the war, she must not be allowed to pay in manufacturing goods dumped on Great Britain.

In a letter, he said to run a part of the cost of the war than to receive her manufactured goods, which would injure British industries and lead to a lowering of wages beyond living limits.

Germany should pay with such gold as she has, also with such material as we can write from her. She can pay labor, laboring damage, she wrought in France and Belgium. She will have no colonies when the allies have done with this business.

Island Was German Naval Station

The British naval authorities have decided that it will be unnecessary to demand the return of Heligoland to Great Britain from Germany, Minister of War Churchill, the minister of munitions, announced in a speech at Dundee.

"We enter the peace conference," said Mr. Churchill, during the course of his address, "with the absolute determination to be no more lenient than necessary in our treatment of the enemy."

Austria Wanted Separate Peace

Made Desperate Efforts to With- draw From War

Vienna.—Count Czernin, former Austro-Hungarian foreign minister, told the correspondents of the Associated Press that Austria had withdrawn its separate peace and withdrawn from the war, even to the extent of offering Germany the empire's rich coal and oil province, Galicia, if Germany would surrender Alsace-Lorraine.

Count Czernin added that Austria's efforts always were defeated by either General von Ludendorff, the chief general staff general, or other German officials who would not go to the extent of agreeing that they were willing to declare war on Austria if Austria made a separate peace.

A Most Extraordinary Case of Ex- treme Nervous Exhaustion and Keenless Suffering from Head- aches—Now Entirely Cured

Mr. George Hall, Meadow Brook Farm, Westsata Valley, Sask., writes: "It is with great pleasure I say a few words of praise for Dr. N. E. F. Food."

"Five years ago while living in Monroe I suffered terribly with a severe pain in the right temple. For four months I could not even bend over without pain. I could not hold the right side of my head with my hand, the pain was so severe. I could not even discharge from my right ear also, but it cannot pain—only the constant pressure of the bone. I could not sleep if I lay down at night I could not get my head up off the pillow without pain. I could not bear to lay beneath the back of my neck to lift up. I could not bear it any longer. I could not bear to go to bed. I had to go to one of the hospitals and consult a doctor, so I went to the Royal Victoria Hospital. They examined me, and told me that I had no appendicitis, that I would have to be an indoor case,"

British Ships Won Great Struggle for World

Leeds, Eng.—"I shall never forget the time when I came to see the message to President Wilson telling him what the facts were and how essential it was that we should get America's help at the speediest possible time and inviting him to send 12,000 men infantry and 1,000 gunners to Europe," said Premier Lloyd George in the course of a speech to 3,000 persons here.

"The following day," continued the premier, "when I came a cablegram from President Wilson: 'Send your ships across and we will send the 12,000 men.'

"Then I invited Sir Joseph McKay, the shipping controller, to Downing street and said 'Send every ship you

Last Word in Democracy

Lady Peirce Proved to Be an Expert Cobbler

The latest note in democracy has been struck by Lady Peirce in England.

She had decided that cobbling is an industry admirably suited to women, and since the shortage of leather was the question, she produced a new-toe-wear, which she repaired all her own boots and shoes, as well as those of her family.

Lately, addressing a crowd of women workers, she produced a piece of material which had been repaired several pairs of boots, including soiling, healing, and patching. Those women in the crowd whose boots showed need of repair took advantage of the "boots mended while you wait" offer and went home with water-tight, footwear and foot for thought.

Wanted to Find Men to Plead German Cause

Paris. — When it was evident that the 20th of the month was near, Germany made a systematic canvass of French prisoners of war in an effort to find men who would plead the case of "new Germany" in France, according to statements made by soldiers who have returned from enemy prisons.

This work began late in October, but the efforts of the Germans were redoubled early in November it is said. The French prisoners were told that they must remain Socialists, which nothing more than to live on friendly terms with their French comrades. German agents said they wanted to get in touch with French deputies to argue that the French should not be socialists. In Germany and France to convince them of the necessity of clearing up differences between the two countries, the prisoners say.

George Ledebur, the German Socialist Democratic leader, asked the German Foreign Office to impress upon his comrades the importance of uniting the proletariat of Germany and France, and pressing the French government with the plea that the armistice should be signed before it is made. Later another French officer is reported to have been brought before Dr. Edward David, one of the German secretaries of states, who received him cordially and urged that Germany must be fed and said that the armistice should be signed on the terms of the armistice, especially as to the clause calling for delivery of railway material.

Twelve Spies Shot During the War

Two Women Executed in Tower of London Also But Sentences Commuted

London. — During the war twelve spies were shot in the tower of London, according to the report now current. Carl Hans Lody, alias Charles Albin, at one time was a resident of Omaha, Nebraska, was the first to be executed.

Two women spies were sentenced to death but both were reprieved, the sentences being commuted to long prison terms. One of the women, Lizzie Wettie, regarded as very dangerous, was tried in company with a man named Rowlands. Rowlands was executed. The couple made frequent journeys between London and Dover, and the information regarding the movements of the British fleet. This information, however, it is declared, never reached Germany.

The other woman spy was Eva De Bouronne, who is now undergoing penal servitude for life. One hanged himself in Brixton Prison while many others convicted of espionage escaped the extreme penalty.

Appreciated Work of British

Norwegian Says They Feed Seas of Endless Torment

London. — Professor Christian Collin of Christiania University, writing on the "Freedom of the Seas," the Norwegian paper Tidens Venner says:

"A voice has been in Norway's voice from Germany—loudly pleading for freedom of the seas. No human being will deny that Germany has indeed done her best to free the seas that is, to free us from carrying the British ships."

"Those who really liberated the seas from a place of ceaseless agony from whose depths rose like bubbles the last dying breaths of those sunk without a trace by the most destructive weapon of religion ever known—those were not the Germans, but England and her colonies, France, Italy and the United States, and it is they alone who have the right to argue for freedom of the seas."

"The others who have succeeded in broadest the fruit of a million labor should be silent. The very seas themselves might well pray for deliverance from these hypocrites who dare speak of the freedom of the seas."

May Attempt to Restore Throne

Paris. — A despatch to the Temps from Geneva correctly states that a German prince in Switzerland announces that Crown Prince Rupprecht of Bavaria, accompanied by several high personages of the former Bavarian kingdom are now at Cerny, in the Caucasus, where they are preparing to attempt the restoration of the house of Wittelsbach, the ruling house of Bavaria.

CLAIMS AGAINST HOLLAND

Belgium Wants Dutch to Give Up Scheldt's Outlet

London. — Belgium claims at the present time that it will be necessary to fight only against Germany, but against Holland, according to the Metropole of Antwerp, which prints a statement made by the Belgian minister of foreign affairs.

"Obviously our first demand from Germany will be the restitution of all of which we were robbed in hundreds of ways. As far as territorial readjustments are concerned, if you carefully follow the news of the progress of the war, the progress from the throne which refers to the old treaties, they will tell you as much as I can."

The passages in question do not finally fit the international treaty of 1839 which fixed the status of Belgium. This treaty deprived the young kingdom of Belgium of the principal portions of her provinces of West Flanders, Antwerp and environs, and the German confederacy took the Belgian provinces of Liege, such as St. Vith, Eupen, Malmsey and Mont Joie. It likewise made the kingdom of the Netherlands master of the lower Scheldt.

Was Regarded as Coward

Kaiser Said to Be Tool of Military Party

London. — Maximilian Harden, editor of the Zukunft of Berlin, said to the correspondent of the Express, according to a despatch from the German news agency, that in his judgment concerning former Emperor William I, he was a failure. He said that he, himself, had suffered too much through the former emperor to incur a charge of partiality, but that it was evident that the former emperor had no personal part in the war, but was a mere tool in the hands of the military party, by which he was regarded as a coward.

"The moment for declaring war on the military was far off when he would refuse to sign the declaration," said Harden. "The former emperor missed his vocation. He was never more than when posted in the army, but he was not a man to put any agreement in contradiction with any agreement."

A strong concentration of ships greatly strengthened and hardened by the lessons of the war, to man our ports and safety for our people and the empire and to put an end to any agreement conflicting with it."

A belief that the conditions of warfare are so changing that we must be careful to protect ourselves against possible attacks.

A readiness to consider any change put forward by neutrals consistent with these essentials.

A desire to co-operate in rendering impossible hideous crimes committed against neutrals.

A readiness as far as is compatible with safety in the full sense to promote any practicable scheme for a League of nations.

In short, a final resolution as to essential neutrals and neutrals as to commanding neutrals. In leading up to this conclusion, the correspondent says:

"The more the British point of view is understood the more it will commend itself to impartial opinion. The closer we look the more we see the differences which must be diminished."

We are dealing with the world as it still is, and so far as the freedom of the seas interferes with the protection of our vital interests it is a one-sided disservice to the detriment of England and England only.

It is indisputable that the British fleet saved civilization and Mr. Roosevelt in acknowledging the obligation of the United States to return to peace conditions, according to an official statement made by Acting Premier Watt, Mr. Watt in the course of an announcement to the federal parliament said he agreed with the view that the British fleet should be used in normal or safe times to allow the executive to usurp the functions of the legislature. He said that all were desirous of returning to the constitutional plan of government.

Some of the responsibilities and powers of the executive, which had grown under the war protection act, he pointed out, could not be terminated without causing imminent danger.

As instance of this he dwelt on the monitory and the control of wheat, butter, cheese, sugar, wool and other commodities.

Regarding the censorship he said that it would still be required to prevent ill-considered publication of news likely to injure the relations between Great Britain and the allies during the peace conference and utterances calculated to injure Australian finances.

King Thinks Swabia

London. — King George has telegraphed to the government of Spain an expression of the opinion of the termination of the scheme under which four thousand British officers and men were interned in Switzerland.

His Majesty expressed great anxiety for the never failing kindness of the British people.

The second essential to be borne in mind is the revolution in maritime warfare caused by the changes in the size of armaments, the changes in weapons and munitions and in modern commerce.

Ground For Anxiety

Provinces in Europe Face Danger of Famine

London. — Field Controller Clynes, in a letter to the press, says that the world's food supply must still for the time, give ground for anxiety. The enemy strip and may occupied provinces and food supplies.

In large territories of Europe there is danger of famine this winter.

The food ministry have already abolished some minor restrictions.

It hopes it will very soon be possible to increase the amount of food of all kinds, but it will clearly be necessary, at least during the winter and spring, to continue to maintain safeguards for a just and equal distribution of food supplies.

Huns are Taking the Occupation of Their Country Very Quietly

Ottawa. — Canadian military headquarters have sent a cable to the director of public information here announcing that two divisions of the Canadian corps are now in Germany, while the remaining divisions, the third and fourth, have just received orders to commence their march from Mons, where they have been accustomed.

Belgium to which the Canadians have been accustomed. It is the 10th anniversary of the signing of the armistice, to the Rhine.

Information from corps headquarters indicates that the inhabitants of Germany are taking the occupation very quietly. They are reserved mostly, with the weather most satisfactory.

to fraternize. The heads of communities are doing their best to see that the official instructions are obeyed.

The first and second Canadian divisions are now in the Rhine, passed through the Ardennes country which does not resemble the part of Belgium to which the Canadians have been accustomed. It is more reminiscent of many parts of Canada with its great plains, swift flowing streams and in some parts dense wood country.

According to General Currie, the health of all ranks is particularly good, with the weather most satisfactory.

GETS BACK WAR PAY

Ex-emperor Charles Continues to Draw From Army

Genoa. — There is much popular dissatisfaction in Genoa over the Vienna newspapers, because former Emperor Charles continues to draw $600,000 crowns annually as supreme head of the army. He received back nearly $1,000,000 crowns recently, the newspaper says.

The Socialist Arbeiter Zeitung declares that the former Emperor still received his army pay, although he surrendered his command on November 2.

Genoese and Austrian money has fallen considerably in value on the Bourse during the last few days. The German mark was quoted at 60 francs per hundred and the Austrian crown at 29 francs per hundred. These are the lowest since the war began.

Swiss bankers believe that the mark in crown will continue to fall as long as the wealthy Germans and Austrians dispose of their holdings.

Invitation Cancelled

Russian Delegation Told to Stay Away From Berlin

Berlin. — The German cabinet has sent a wireless message to the Russian government, asking it not to send a delegation to Berlin for a conference planned for December 16. The reason given was the "present situation in Germany."

The Russian Bolshevik delegates were invited by the executive committee of the soldiers' and workmen's council against the wishes of the German government. The situation has been strengthened beyond doubt by accusations made by Adolf Joffe, the Bolshevik ambassador, who has made a statement saying that the government is most anxious that the Irish should be sent to Berlin.

"The Irish should be sent to Berlin to be used for world revolution," said Joffe.

"Great Britain goes to peace conference ready to bestow self-government upon Ireland. It is only the quarrel and disputes of the Irishmen which have prevented the government from giving up Ireland to the British empire," said Joffe.

The situation has been strengthened beyond doubt by accusations made by Adolf Joffe, the Bolshevik ambassador, who has made a statement saying that the government is most anxious that the Irish should be sent to Berlin to be used for world revolution," said Joffe.

"The Russian delegation was invited by the executive committee of the soldiers' and workmen's council against the wishes of the German government. The situation has been strengthened beyond doubt by accusations made by Adolf Joffe, the Bolshevik ambassador, who has made a statement saying that the government is most anxious that the Irish should be sent to Berlin to be used for world revolution," said Joffe.

Sacrifices Have Lasted for Fifty Years

Paris. — Returning from redeemed Alsace-Lorraine, Premier Clemenceau delivered one of the most remarkable speeches ever heard in the chamber of deputies. The speech dealt with Alsace-Lorraine and the premier was received with enthusiasm.

The chamber was quietly discussing the question of mining privileges in Algeria when the aged premier made his appearance. There was hearty applause from all sides of the house. The "old tiger" ascended the tribune and began his address in a low voice.

"For me in this life, which at times has seemed miserably long," said M. Clemenceau, "it has been permitted to a man of my age to witness a stage of crime which has been committed between Bordeaux and Strasbourg. What has been accomplished in this regard, in this regard, has written history has ever registered before."

"The redemption of Alsace-Lorraine has been the goal of my life. A young girl to whom I spoke in Strasbourg said to me: 'We may now smile, M. Clemenceau, we have wept long enough.'

"I am speechless. Silence alone could cope with such a situation. Many times have I felt life not worth living, but when a young girl from Alsace-Lorraine in the east-trance of their joy kissed me, saying 'We have wept long enough,' my journey of life is finished."

"Some day, some day will tell you about those heroic sacrifices which have marked the last half a century. We must go to the homes of the Elsas and Lorraines."

Leaving the chamber, M. Clemenceau hurried to his office in the ministry of war in St. Domingue street, where he was over the court of the Bourbon Palace, and after climbing the fifty-four steps leading to his office with youthful agility. When seen by the correspondents immediately on his arrival, the premier showed not the slightest sign of exhaustion as a result of his quick trip from the chamber to his desk.

Refuses To Talk

Kaiser Prefers To Talk Face to Face

London. — Field Marshal Hohenlohe will not make any statement as to his efforts to prevent the outbreak of war in 1914, according to the Autoren correspondent of the Express. The correspondent has finally succeeded in having submitted to him a list of questions as to his patriotic attitude before the war and his steps to prevent hostilities.

Count von Bentinck, the former emperor's horse, received the correspondents after the interview had been laid before Herr Hohenlohe, and is reported to have said:

"The Kaiser much appreciates your message and thanks you. He says: 'I have no objection to your coming to my country as a defendant. I prefer postponing anything I have to say until that time. In addition, I do not desire in any way to compromise any member of the government as it existed at the time of the outbreak of the war.'

BRITISH RIGHTS WILL REMAIN

President Wilson No: Antagonistic to Empire's Interests

London. — As a result of informal conversations regarding President Wilson's freedom of the seas proposals, the British government is now in a position of considerable suggestions which are far removed from the "free seas" clause to Mr. Wilson's 14 points, according to the Express.

President Wilson, the newspaper says, has information showing definitely that Great Britain cannot surrender the right of search, the contraband law and the right to enforce blockade.

It is understood that Mr. Wilson's proposals do not include the abandonment of any of these rights and that they are in no wise antagonistic to British interests as has been supposed.

To Form New Government

Stockholm. — According to the Dagens Nyheter, the formation of a new Russian government in Stockholm is contemplated. It is asserted that this government will be headed by Count Protopopov, who is the Admiral of the Tripartite, who is said to have arrived in Stockholm. Prince Vladimir Volkonsky, former assistant minister of the interior, Baron Taube and Senator Jastakko also are mentioned as possible members of the new government.

The new government will consist of 12 members, which it is declared, the entente will support and which temporarily will carry on matters of state in Stockholm while awaiting the fall of the Bolsheviks.

Mr. Lomas, who assumes the position of general manager, has had many years of successful and practical experience as a stockman. Mr. Elliott, whose diplomacy and tact are so well known, will look after the purchasing and importations, to which his old service experience especially qualifies him, whilst Mr. McKinnon will look after the financial needs. They also propose to keep a large kennel of Russian wolfhounds, of the same strain of breeding which Mr. Lomas now owns. The reputation of dogs is too well known to need repetition.
